

Single Assessment Process for older people training resources website

The Centre for Policy on Ageing has launched a training resources website for health and social care practitioners implementing the Single Assessment Process (SAP) for older people in April 2004, and afterwards www.cpa.org.uk/sap. Commissioned by the Department of Health, the SAP resources site identifies learning and development materials focusing on practice and change with respect to joint working, person-centred care and health/social care of older people. Details of training manuals, protocols, assessment tools, workshop outlines, videos and development strategies are included on the site, which is continually being updated. Web links and downloadable documents are provided or full contact details are given to help source a piece of information. The site also features 'good practice' localities and a list of related training organisations. The aim is to provide access to information in all its various forms that can be shared across sectors, organisations and individuals. Gillian Crosby, the SAP project manager at CPA, is keen to receive details of further materials available.
